Jeanne Poortstra Named Miss Pocono Mountains

By Bill Berry

JEANNE Poortstra was named Miss Pocono Mountains last night.

"I'm overwhelmed," she said, "it's just wonderful."

Miss Poortstra, who was named the leader in three of the four competitions which ascertain the title-holder, was a competitor in last year's contest as well. "I don't remember if I placed or not," she said, "I'm too excited."

Jeanne's sentiments were summed up by Karen Roth, proprietor of the Roth School of Performing Arts. "This means," said Mrs. Roth, "that Jeanne can go on with her plans to be a performer.

"Now we really have to work. Jeanne's worked very hard, but now we are really going to get ready for the Miss Pennsylvania competition." This will be held at West Chester during the latter part of the month, Jeanne, as Miss Pocono Mountains, will be a candidate.

Marilyn Pettinato was chosen as runner-up, and Charlotte Herman took third. All three are natives of East Stroudsburg.

The competition was an all-day affair, beginning at the swimming pool at Shawnee Inn. The seven young ladies paraded before the five judges in bathing attire, then retired to rooms graciously provided by the Inn to don the formal dresses which formed part of the second part of the contest.

Hosted by Bill Garrison, General Manager of Shawnee, the contestants, judges, and radio and press representatives were treated to a turkey dinner, at which the judges were to estimate the personality poise and intellect of the girls.

Miss Poortstra was elected at the most personable and intellectual of the girls, and Miss Pettinato the swim-suit champion.

The second half of the program was consummated at the East Stroudsburg State Teachers College Auditorium, where the Talent and Evening Gown competitions were run off. Miss Poortstra was the recipient of the diadem in both events.

The judges, who unanimously selected Jeanne as Miss Pocono Mountains, were Ted Berger, his wife, Jean, and Robert Klein, of Allentown, Robert H. Maurer of Hempstead, Losg Island and Brooklynite Antnony LaPonzina. Klein was selected as unofficial chairman and tabulator.

Miss Poortstra received the complete approbation of the judges for her dance routine, entitled Trip Around The World in 180 Seconds." Jeanne never lost contact with her audience as she portrayed diverse paces which symbolized the many areas of the world. Her "Can-Can" and Waltz were especially graceful and entertaining.

Marilyn, too, featured dancing in her bid for the title, executing a highly symbolic interpretation of "Black the Bottomless." Accompanied by a recorded music-and-monologue moralistic background, Miss Pettinato, clad entirely in black, followed the tenets of modern dance with her highly formal rendition.

Third-place winner Charlotte Herman, an accomplished pianist, performed admirably with Debussy's "Claire De Lune".

Joe Whalen, Program Director of Station WVPO, acted as the Master of Ceremonies.

The crown was presented to Jeanne by Dr. LeRoy J. Koehler, President of East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, who removed the symbol of victory from a pillow which was brought onto the stage by Miss Paulette Peterson.

Eighteen-year-old Stancy Ace, a Stroudsburg girl, was picked as Miss Congeniality by the other contestants. Her talent-routine was the song "If I Loved You."

Beverly McDowell, Jeannette Miller, and Jean Smith were the remaining contestants. Beverly rendered a highly personable Hawaiian dance, while Jeannette executed a clever monologue entitled "Every Bird Must Sing."

Miss Smith had a good time on the stage, and drew favorable comments from the judges during the compilation and decision period which followed. Her discussion about how to teach youngsters how to swim was augmented by an actual demonstration with a pair of young girls.

Miss Poortstra, as Miss Pocono Mountains, will be a guest star on the Sally Ferrebee program, WVPO, Friday morning. In addition, she will crown the "Queen of the Laurel" at Split Rock Lodge tonight, and will appear at the Monroe County Garden Club Rose Tea tomorrow.

The entire affair was run by Mrs. Clifford Heller and Mrs. Robert Miller.

To expedite the period of time at the beginning of the night's program, when the contestants were readying in the wings, a group of 22 girls executed a crowd-pleasing minuet. And when the judges retired at the end of the contest, three young entertainers — Linda Sue Hartman, Margaret Glover, and Louis Sigmand —filled the gap, ably augmented by Emcee Whalen.

Court Bars Girard Shift To Japan

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—The long arm of a U. S. District Court reached out today and barred U. S. authorities from turning GI William S. Girard over to Japan for trial on manslaughter charges.

Judge Joseph C. McGarraghy enjoined the government from surrendering the young soldier to the Japanese, on the grounds that to do so would violate Girard's constitutional rights.

Thus the judge wrote the latest—but not the last—chapter in a delicate international controversy which could have a major impact on U.S. relations with Japan and other allies.

The U. S. government promptly filed a formal notice of appeal of the ruling. The U.S. Supreme Court doubtless will be the final arbiter.

In view of the appeal move, Japan said it would go right ahead with its plans to try Girard for the death of a Japanese woman.

Today's ruling upset a U. S. decision, approved by President Eisenhower, to let Japanese courts try Girard, secretary of state Dulles said yesterday that to upset the decision could lead to "great embarrassment" for the United States.

Trial

Judge McGarrahy said Girard, 21, Army specialist 3rd class, is entitled to trial by U.S. Army court-martial because the death of the woman, Naka Sakai, "arose out of an act or omission done in the performance of official duty."

Mrs. Sakai was killed when struck in the back, while on a military firing range, by an empty cartridge casing fired from a grenade launcher. Girard, who was guarding some military equipment at the time, said he fired the empty casing to warn her away and did not intend to hit her. Mrs. Sakai and some other Japanese civilians were scavenging for scrap metal.

Court Martial

Judge McGarraghy ruled that the 1950 Uniform Code of Military Justice called for U.S. court-martials in such cases. A military court would have jurisdiction in the case even if it occurred in this country and one of the states claimed the right to prosecute, he held.

Since Girard remains a member of the U.S. armed forces in Japan, the judge said, he may be prosecuted in court - martial proceedings there.

But he said that to deliver Girard to the Japanese government "would violate. . .rights guaranteed by the Constitution" and is therefore forbidden.

Miller Seeks Reversal Of Conviction

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—Playwright Arthur Miller today demanded reversal of his conviction on contempt of Congress charges, citing a day-old Supreme Court ruling which already has caused a delay in one congressional investigation.

Attorneys for Miller, husband of actress Marilyn Monroe, told U.S. Dist. Judge Charles F. McLaughlin that yesterday's high court decision in the contempt case of John T. Watkins "requires an acquittal" of Miller.

Because of the Watkins ruling, a Senate Internal Security subcommittee agreed today to postpone a scheduled hearing for one week, to allow the lawyer for three witnesses to study the decision's "very broad" implications.

The Supreme Court's action also prompted fresh congressional criticism of its recent rulings in cases bearing on the control and investigation of communism.

Miller's attorney, Joseph L. Rauh Jr., argued in a legal memorandum filed with Judge McLaughlin that the Watkins decision "fits the Miller case even more clearly than it fits the Watkins case." Rauh also was attorney for Watkins.

Like Watkins, Miller was prosecuted because he refused, without invoking the Fifth Amendment, to identify for House investigators Communists with whom he associated some 10 years ago. Both men told of their own leftwing activities.

In reversing the Watkins conviction on contempt charges, the Supreme Court said the purpose of the inquiry at which he testified was obscure and not adequately revealed to the witness.

Billy Graham Describes Devil

NEW YORK, June 18 (AP)—The Devil isn't a horned creature with a pitchfork but "the prince of the earth" with tremendous power, Billy Graham said tonight.

He told 16,500 at Madison Square Garden that the popular conceptions of the Devil are grossly erroneous.

Good Morning!

Newest invention is a color-sensitive device, bolted to the front of a car, which is activated when the traffic light turns green. At that precise moment it automatically toots the horn on the car behind you.

Humphrey Fires Verbal Blast At Critics

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—A Senate inquiry into government money policies opened today in a burst of hot-weather fireworks.

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey fired the first shot, saying his critics are "inflationists" whose programs would worsen an already "disturbing" dollar depreciation.

Humphrey was the first, and the day's only, witness before the Senate Finance Committee, which opened a long-heralded inquiry into federal tax and monetary policies.

Chairman Byrd (D-Va) promised in an opening statement that the investigation would be objective. But questions about that prediction were raised on the Senate floor almost before Humphrey, soon to leave the Eisenhower Cabinet, finished his uninterrupted testimony.

Unfortunate

Sen. Bush (R-Conn) told his colleagues it was unfortunate the government finance question had become "the subject of a political attack"—meaning the Democrats control the committee which is investigating.

Bush said it's unfortunate the question couldn't have been explored by a bipartisan commission such as President Eisenhower has suggested.

Senate Majority Leader Johnson said the Byrd Committee plans "a thorough and complete exploration of the circumstances which have brought us to our tight money policy."

Johnson said this policy had attacked the nation's economy like a cancer, with effects ranging from the bond market to the financial position of the small businessman.

"This means that the consumer will pay more for his refrigerator, his furnace and every other article of decent living," Johnson said.

Other senators quickly leaped into the debate.

The Treasury secretary said, too, that the past four years have brought far greater stability in the buying power of the dollar than did the previous two decades.

"Faced with this choice between the inconvenience of limited credit and the robbery of renewed inflation," Humphrey said, "Our people would certainly choose the course which we have pursued the past four years."

He denied the Treasury faces any "crisis" in financing the public debt. He gave the administration credit for ending red-ink federal financing. And he asserted "there is more credit available today than ever before."

While a battery of his Democratic critics on the committee sat silent, Humphrey took a seat on the Republican side of the committee dais, adjusted his horn-rimmed glasses, and for two hours read aloud a 50-page prepared statement.

Republican members had obtained a rule barring questions until the end. That postponed the Democratic counterattack until tomorrow.

Some Democrats have made no secret of their wish to make political hay out of the inquiry by stressing the impact of "tight money" on small businesses, farmers, consumers and prospective home buyers.

Statement

Chairman Byrd (D-Va) read an opening statement which promised an "objective" inquiry but asked some sharp questions.

The dollar has dropped to 49.8 cents compared with its 1940 value, Byrd said, and the "indications are that inflation is continuing, and perhaps accelerating." Living costs have increased for eight consecutive months, he noted.

"Actually, confidence in the American dollar is the principal deterrent in the world today to Russian aggression," he said.

"This committee wants to know the causes of this new inflation, and it wants to find the remedy before the consequences become disastrous."

Walter Raps Decision

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18 (AP)—A psychology teacher who admits having been a Communist told a House subcommittee on Un-American Activities today he was willing to name his associates.

Shortly before the witness, Dr. Jack Patten, took the stand, the subcommittee chairman, Rep. Francis E. Walter (D-Pa) fired an oblique criticism at yesterday's U.S. Supreme Court decision clearing a labor organizer of contempt for refusal to do the same thing.

Wording

Without specifically mentioning the Supreme Court, Walter said "This invasion of the legislative field requires Congress to assert its authority in this field."

Prior to Dr. Patten's appearance, three other witnesses took the Fifth Amendment.

Torrid Wave Blamed For 177 Deaths In U.S.

Severe Local Storm Accompanies Heat

SEVERE thunder and lightning accompanied brief afternoon showers which temporarily brought the mercury down from the 90s yesterday but caused some damage around Monroe County.

The home of Ralph Singer in Reeders was slightly damaged when lightning apparently followed a power line into the building. Jackson Township firefighters, who responded to an alarm, reported that lightning burned one end of a bed and blew an electrical fixture.

Trees and shrubbery were also damaged during the storm in the Tannersville area and the West End.

Meanwhile, the steaming heat and high humidity are expected to be with us until tomorrow—at least.

Monday night was the hottest night of the season. The thermometer dipped to a "high" low of 65 degrees in Stroudsburg at 7 a.m. yesterday, and to 66 in Mount Pocono at 6:30 a.m.

Stroudsburg Weather Observer William Hagerty reported that the high was reached at 2:45 p.m. when the thermometer registered 93 degrees. It dropped to 82 at 3 p.m. after the storm hit, but climbed upward again a short time later.

Hagerty disclosed that seven-hundredths of an inch of rain fell yesterday.

Meanwhile, at Mount Pocono, a high of 89 degrees was recorded at 2:30 p.m. by Mrs. John T. Grady, the weather observer there. The thermometer dipped to 78 after the showers, but climbed again to 85.

As the heat wave continued into its seventh straight day, Hagerty predicted the situation would remain about the same today—and perhaps be a "trifle hotter" than yesterday.

He hinted that there may also be more thunder today and high humidity.

Hagerty said, however, that the heat wave should taper off after today.

The Associated Press reported that the weatherman indicated there is a 50-50 chance of relief by tomorrow. But his optimism was far from positive.

He said two cold fronts might do the trick and bring down the mercury from its record-breaking 90-degree and higher marks.

One front has been poised in the Midwest during the past several days, but has been blocked from sweeping across the Keystone State by a high pressure system that blankets the entire eastern portion of the U. S.

The second cold front is over Canada and may move down into Pennsylvania to absorb some of the heat from the scorching sun.

Since midnight Friday, when even overnight temperatures failed to fall below 70 in many places, 15 persons have drowned in Pennsylvania rivers, creeks and lakes. Three others were killed near Scranton by lightning in a brief thunderstorm that brought no relief on Sunday.

The animal residents of the Philadelphia zoo, from king lion down, complained, too. Apparently the temperatures were a little too tropical. Zoo officials say it's hotter than any jungle climate.

Philadelphia neared an all-time heat record for June. In climbing into the 90's Tuesday the current hot spell matched a record achieved only twice before in 85 years—consecutive days of 90 degree temperatures.

The weatherman predicts the record will be smashed Wednesday and surpassed again Thursday—unless those two cold fronts move in fast.

Electric power companies everywhere in the Keystone State reported more current in use. Air conditioners, freezers, refrigerators worked overtime.

Intense heat caused a section of Route 202, at Buckingham, Bucks County, to buckle. The concrete rose at least a foot above the roadway.

In many office buildings employes were getting half-day holidays. But workers arriving early for jobs in air-conditioned buildings, didn't rush to leave at the end of the day.

School kids, out of classes, slipped into bathing trunks and turned on the garden hoses, not on the lawn but themselves.

HOTTEST STORY OF THE DAY yesterday was, of course, the weather. Whether you liked it or not. Along about 5 p. m., when the setting sun set sweltering soaks like us in a dither, we arrived at the point of no return—we had to write a weather story. So we did. The typewriter, however, was uncooperative. Like the wonderful one-hoss shay this ramblin' wreck took things into its own hands (keys if you like), typed out this brief message and then broke into a fountain of flame. We were forced to agree with it. We picked up our thermos, our grey flannel shorts and retired to the shade of a nearby tree. You wanna know about weather, you'll have to read the story this time.

East Expected To Continue Sweltering

THE season's first big heat wave started cracking up in the Midwest Tuesday after taking a heavy toll in the eastern half o fthe nation from drownings, storms and floods.

Relief was expected to over-spread virtually the entire Midwest by Wednesday, but more scorching weather was forecast for the East.

An Associated Press survey showed that four days of heat in the eastern half of the United States resulted in at least 177 deaths from drownings, heat prostrations and storms. Another 26 perished in floods caused by torrential rains for an over-all 203 weather deaths in four days.

Heat near the 90-degree bracket was the rule again Tuesday from the Mississippi River eastward to the Atlantic. It marked the seventh consecutive day of temperatures of 90 or higher for numerous cities.

But the cold front was beginning an eastward march across the Midwest. The front extended from a low center in southern Canada southward through western Lake Huron and western Wisconsin and southwestward into Missouri and Oklahoma.

Eastward

The U.S. Weather Bureau in Chicago said the front was expected to advance eastward into Ohio and southward over most of Kentucky and Tennessee on Wednesday.

However, continued hot and humid weather was forecast for the eastern seaboard states.

Thunderstorms marked the advance of the cool front and flood waters continued on the rampage in parts of South Dakota. Some 50 homes were flooded by swirling flood waters at Dell Rapids, S.D. The Big Sioux River swelled from banks normally 60 feet wide to widths as great as 1½ miles near Renner, north of Sioux Falls.

The Big Blue River crested at 22.35 feet at Seward, Neb., but a protective dike system built four years ago protected the city. Robert Olmstead, weather observer, said the river reached the highest stage in its history before starting a slow decline.

The hottest weather since September 1955 sent the mercury boiling to 104 in Los Angeles Tuesday.

It was the hottest June 18 on record, smashing the 1906 record of 9. The highest ever recorded in June in the city was 105 on June 7, 1890.

The 104 at 1:15 p.m. was the warmest this year. It exceeded last year's top of 102 on Sept. 9 and hasn't been exceeded since the 1955 heat wave when a 110 was recorded Sept. 1.

Favorable Treatment Major Issue

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—Senate investigators today raised the question whether Bakers Union President James G. Cross gave favored treatment to big baking interests from which he borrowed more than $100,000.

Robert F. Kennedy, counsel to the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee, brought up the matter in questioning of a witness. Kennedy failed to get any yes or no answers but told reporters he would introduce documentary evidence tomorrow with Cross on the witness stand.

Kennedy identified the employers as Martin Philipsborn Sr., and a brother, Herbert Philipsborn, who he said have "interests" in the Zion Industries, Inc., Zion, Ill.

Chicago

In Chicago, Philipsborn's son, Martin Jr., said "Zion Industries Inc. never made any loan to Cross and never received any favored threatment, such as withdrawal of a strike threat, from the Bakers Union."

Martin Jr. said so far as he knows his father never made a loan to Cross but that his uncle, Herbert Philipsborn, acting in the capacity of broker, arranged a "small" Federal Housing Administration loan for Cross.

Martin Sr. was not available for comment.

House Passes Civil Rights

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—The House passed President Eisenhower's civil rights bill 286-126 today and sent it to a new battleground in the Senate.

Leadership

House passage came after Southerners lost their fourth attempt to attach a jury trial amendment, which supporters of the bill said would cripple it. The Southerners were turned back 251-158, and the House then proceeded to its final roll call.

Now the Republican leadership in the Senate says it stands prepared to take extraordinary steps to force the bill to the floor. But if the measure gets there it seems almost certain to run into a Southern Democratic filibuster.

Senate GOP Leader Knowland of California was asked by reporters today whether he was determined to try to break a filibuster, no matter how long it might take.

Scientists Watch Latest Atomic Test

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev., June 18 (AP)—A balloon-suspended atomic test weapon was exploded today and several hundred scientists and observers evacuated control and observation points as a precaution against radioactive fallout.

The Nevada Test Organization said later "only very light fallout" was recorded in the control area and that there would have been no danger had the people remained.

The atomic device, fourth in this series of tests, went off with a dazzling flash visible 300 miles away at 4:55 a.m.

The mushroom cloud rose to above 30,000 feet. The top, separating cleanly from the stem, was blown north of due east. The stem dragged at low altitude and spread out in a long V. It was blown to slightly north of due west.

The NTO said that "partially-because of this 180 degrees of wind shear and partially because of the balloon placement with the fireball not touching the ground, only traces of fallout may be expected outside the bombing range." The range is adjacent to the test area.

The evacuation of the control and observer areas was ordered because of the possibility of winds from the north carrying a dangerous amount of fallout onto those points, eight miles from the blast.

Because of the radioactive clouds, the Civil Aeronautics Administration closed a triangular area to planes between 6:45 a.m. and 8:45 a.m.

Rev. Staples Named Assistant Pastor At Church In Area

Presbytery Approves Appointment

ASHLAND — Lehigh Presbytery yesterday approved the appointment of Rev. Charles E. Staples as assistant pastor of the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church, effective Sept. 4th.

Mr. Staples, who received the call of the local church session at its last meeting, will serve as pastor during the absence of Rev. John A. Bollier from September through April 1 of next year.

Mr. Bollier has been granted a six-months leave-of-absence to attend the Ecumenical Institute of the World Council of Churches in Bossey, Switzerland. Selected for the honor by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, Mr. Bollier is one of some 35 young theologians from all over the world who will attend the sessions.

Lafayette

Born in Easton, the new assistant pastor was graduated by Lafayette College and served as a Navy supply officer during World War II. In 1948, he received his masters degree from Harvard Business School.

Mr. Staples spent two years with the Philco Corp., first serving in its advertising department and later as manager of the company's sales research department. He then returned to Harvard for two years as an instructor in business administration.

He entered Princeton Theological Seminary in 1952, and received his bachelor of divinity degree there three years later.

For the last two years, he has served as instructor in religion at Lafayette College, and also as adviser to the Senior High Westminster Fellowship of the First Presbyterian Church in Bethlehem.

West Germany Adds Pressure

FFANKFURT, Germany, June 18 (AP)—West German industry is putting pressure on the Bonn government to join the parade of nations easing curbs on trade with Red China.

There's money in commerce with the Communist sphere and West German exporters and importers would like to broaden a field in which they've done right well over the last three years.

Fritz Berg, president of the powerful Federation of German Industries, spoke up last week in favor of relaxing the embargo. A federation affiliate, called the Eastern Committee of the German Economy, is sending a delegation to Red China next fall to prepare an agreement to regulate trade between the two countries.

Let's Get Moving On Orderly Planning Program For Monroe County

Growth Of Population, Industry To Create Community Problems

From all fronts comes the advice to get busy on community planning before it is too late to do something about sub-division development, zoning and such matters as a budgeted, spaced-out capital improvements program.

The latest call was sounded here Monday when a State Commerce Department official addressed the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce. He was Newton Griffiths, chief of the plant location division of the Bureau of Industrial Development.

Griffiths pointed up the need for community planning when he declared: "Never before have so many cities and areas competed so aggressively for so many new industries."

Monroe County, he said, is located adjacent to the world's largest industrial concentration and congestion centering in the New York metropolitan area. As industries reach out to avoid virtual strangulation, they will look to localities such as this which are close to the major metropolitan market. So we must be prepared to deal with any eventuality.

Shortway's Influence

"In view of the announced approval of the Keystone Shortway from Stroudsburg to Sharon," said Griffiths, "it is more important now than ever before to begin thinking of land control, site preparation protective zoning measures, and provision of the necessary facilities."

Much of the same advice was given a week ago by Clifton E. Rodgrs, prominent planning consultant, when he appeared at a meeting of the Monroe County Planning Commission which also was attended by the county commissioners and others.

Rodgers recommended an adequate planning program for the county which would investigate population trends, distribution, movements, composition and community characteristics.

He also suggested an economic study dealing with industry, commerce, agriculture and other components of the local economy, including basic and secondary employment factors.

Natural resources, topography and physiography would be studied too, along with existing land utilization, transportation facilities and traffic flow.

As a basis for putting the program into effect, Rodgers recommended that technical committees be set up in each borough and township to offer suggestions to the county board on planning and land use. These committees would represent civic and service groups as well as other phases of the community life.

Such an approach is a very definite step in the right direction and should be exploited without delay in every political subdivision so that the county program can proceed in an orderly, well defined manner.

Furthermore, the larger communities where industrial development is most likely to underscore the need for proper land usage, zoning ordinances should be approved and commissions set up to administer the program. These communities would include all four boroughs and the most populous townships like Stroud, Barrett and several others.

Regional planning would be mainly concentrated upon land use, streets and highways, public improvements, school, recreational and cultural facilities, and possibly economic development.

Overseeing the entire program would be the County Planning Commission with authority to hire a consultant to conduct a planning survey. The consultant's final report would guide the county board and the communities in arriving at an orderly program. Thus, planning in itself is not final; it merely compiles a list of recommendations to be passed on to governing bodies for integration.

Costs of the survey, Rodgers estimated, would be in the neighborhood of $24,000 a year for the first two years and considerably less afterward. Half of this amount would be shared by the federal and state governments and the remaining half by the county.

Rodgers said the work could be started even though the money has not been budgeted for the coming fiscal year by the county commissioners.

The need for planning is urgent. The instruments with which to do it are either available or can be brought into play without too much effort.

Must Face Growth

Every step that must be taken in planning should be taken without further procrastination. Then, and only then, can the county expect to start moving against the problems that industrial development and growth in population will force upon us and only then will we make real progress.

CHAIN LETTER

Good Evening, Ladies!

Young Female Einsteins Turn Mathematical Morons

By Ken Duvall

Little girls, writes a male reader, are usually better than little boys in arithmetic. He remembers that, when he was a school kid, one reason he did not like little girls was that they were always getting good grades in the subject and making him look like a dummy.

How is it, then, he asks, that they grow up to be mathematical morons and keep their husbands on the ragged edge of bankruptcy, or arrest for fraud, because they haven't the foggiest understanding of a simple banking principle, to wit, you can't take more money out of a checking account than you put in?

This man has asked a simple question to which he deserves a simple answer, and I wish I had one for him. While I think he over-generalizes, and that somewhere, perhaps, in a pleasant little town in Iowa, there are a woman or two who can keep a checkbook straight, I also remember the smart little girls who got good grades in arithmetic.

I retain a mental image of a couple of these who are still around here. I can see them now, tripping primly to the blackboard to run up a column of figures and do a problem in subtraction after I had been sent back to my seat, humiliated, defeated, and a potential woman-hater.

So I asked their husbands how these prodigies had developed, mathematically speaking, and whether they ever had any checkbook trouble. Both said they had plenty of trouble and wasn't my memory slipping a few cogs. I simply couldn't be remembering their wives as arithmetic geniuses. Basket-weaving or finger-painting, maybe. But addition and subtraction—no.

A Case Of False Security

One said it was funny I called because just the day before he had been to the bank in an effort to straighten out his account. His checkbook showed a balance of $320. The bank said he was short nearly a hundred. The bookkeeper, in going over his stubs and deposit slips from the joint checkbook used by the couple, made some discoveries. Important among these was that deposits of $120 one week and $160 the next equals $480; take away $32 for grocery money and you get $513. The husband remembered seeing this balance and having, briefly, a fine sense of satisfaction and security without wondering too much how it happened.

The other man told me that his trouble stems from his wife writing checks which she carries in her purse and never subtracting them from the balance in the book, forgetting the whole transaction as soon as the ink is dry on her signature. She calls him at his office and says, "Honey, how much money do we have in the bank?" He dreads this because he knows she's downtown and on a buying binge, so he lies to her and clips off a hundred or so when he answers.

This doesn't work because she forgets the figure after writing the first check and when he wants to know how much she wrote so he can strike a new balance in the book, she finds she failed to make a notation on the stub of her book and just makes a wild guess.

Figures of any kind, even telephone numbers, make her dizzy, he said, and he is quite sure that if she is left a widow she will see the inside of Alcatraz. He still remembers the summer she earned a few hundred bucks selling something on commission, after which the company went out of business and she couldn't remember how much should go into their tax return.

I have my own solution to this problem which works pretty well. I wrote a letter to the bank, making a frank expose of mathematical imbecility on the part of that certain party and authorizing automatic withdrawals from savings to cover overdraughts. Just don't bother me, I said. I can't do a thing about it. The bank president, a married man, said he understood.

George Sokolsky Says...

27 Different Nations Provide Institutions Of Deceit For Those Wishing To Evade Tax

Taxation has become an epidemic which is fast reducing the keenest minds and the most active personalities in all countries to frustration and despair. It is excessive taxation, as a weapon for the distribution of wealth and benefits, which is making more and more people partially dependent upon government for a low standard of life.

When such a horrible disease affects mankind, wise men find means to circumvent the tax laws and the Swiss remedy has become quite popular and is being adopted by many countries—my own list would show that about 27 countries have gone into the business of providing institutions of deceit for those who choose to risk not to pay taxes.

The remedy is simple: convert all your money into cash, open an anonymous account in a bank where you think you will be safest, make deposits in cash regularly, and never pay a tax. It is done every day. Fred C. Scribner, Jr., Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, testified recently that $500,000 a week is deposited in large amounts in United States banks for transfer to anonymous accounts in Switzerland.

This sum of $500,000 a week represents only deposits made in cash. It is a very low figure because it reflects large amounts and the likelihood is that the more security-conscious folks are depositing small amounts in several banks.

The bank asks no questions. There are no general laws requiring a bank to identify a depositor, particularly as he is using the bank's facilities to transfer some funds out of which the bank makes a quick fee.

So no bank keeps investigators to check the names and addresses of those who deposit cash and the Treasury really has no business going after a man who deposits cash because the currency of the United States is legal tender and the Treasury has no right to accuse a citizen of evading the income tax only because the citizen uses legal tender instead of checks.

So, here is quite a situation which some day some citizen will take into the courts, where he will undoubtedly win his case by proving that he paid his income tax, but still prefers legal tender to bank checks.

Perhaps the greatest violation of civil liberties, but a most useful one, was the Al Capone case in which the government established it as due process that if it failed to prove that a man committed murder and other felonies, they could get him for income tax violations.

This really made the income tax violation the most heinous offense in the United States and the one, therefore, that required the keenest ingenuity.

Assistant Scretary of the Treasury Scribner said that all large cash deposits in banks are scrutinized:

"The interest here is not on the part of the main Treasury, as such. It is an interest of the Internal Revenue Department in the sense that they are interested in any large deposits, regardless of who makes them, to see if they lead into any area of profits we haven't tapped, or have not been properly reported . . ."

In a word, the position of the Treasury is that the deposit of legal tender rather than checks automatically sets up an investigation, which some people beat by depositing their money to a numbered foreign account or a foreign nominee but giving a fictitious name and address in this country.

This colloquy is telling:

"Scribner. There have been several cases where they have not been able to locate immediately persons bearing the names of those who made deposits.

"It perhaps would be fair to say that, perhaps, they have found in some instances that deposits are made under assumed names.

"Rusher (Associate Counsel). That is to say, when the investigators of Internal Revenue go to find out who has been making large cash deposits to the credit of Swiss numbered accounts, they have found, at least in a number of cases, that they cannot find a person bearing the name of the depositor living at the address given when he made the deposit; is that correct?

"Scribner. There have been some instances in which our investigators reported that to be the fact; yes, sir."

There are clearly many ways of skinning a cat.

In "The Worldly Philosophers," Robert L. Heilbronner tells of the time in the 1860s when Cornelius Vanderbilt discovered that some of his closest so-called friends were planning to doublecross him in the stock market. He promptly sent them this brief, soul-shaking rebuke, "Gentlemen: You have undertaken to ruin me. I will not sue you, for law takes too long. I will ruin you. Sincerely, C. Vanderbilt." Adds Heilbroner, "He did, too."

A tight-fisted sales manager was carefully checking the expense accounts of his travelers, steaming visibly as he spotted typical "swindle sheet" items. One made him yell for his assistant.

"Look at this burglar's claim!" he demanded. "How can you spend $9 for food in a single day in Sandusky?"

It's easy," answered the assistant cheerfully. "You just skip breakfast."

The Once Over

—by H. I. Phillips

In the wake of the hubbub over the Khrushchev telecast, Secretary John Foster Dulles has come out for a monthly video program for alternate interviews with Russian and American leaders . . . (This could kill Wednesday night fight programs, not to mention rasslin' and even TV westerns . . . There could be more violence than on any of them.)

The repeat performances might be almost as bad as a world war, unless comedy relief could be injected . . . These regular exchanges of candid views over world airwaves would bring the "ballistic vocal chord" into the already disturbing world situation . . . It has been a blessing that the people have not been too familiar with what world leaders were saying . . . It will be a day of big jitters when they can find out merely by twisting a dial in fireside TV sets.

We can fancy the ultimate listing of programs:

3 to 4.—Soviet Candid Excoriation Hour.

4 to 5.—Washington Crosses the Volga Program.

5 to 6.—Red China Rumpus Room.

6 to 7.—Nasser of the Jungle.

7 to 8.—Nehru's "You-Asked-For-It" Hour.

8 to 9.—Popeye The Assailant. (An open forum for troublemakers everywhere.)

Television does strange things to participants, and its effect on the ego can be a menace to world peace and better understandings. There will always be speakers so inflated by TV prominence that they lose poise and control. Suppose an important leader in any country forgets all about his talk on brotherhood and thinks only of his Trendex rating!!!

Robert S. Allen Reports

Natural Gas Bill Gains Support In Committee

Washington, June 18—It looks like the latest version of the long-pending natural gas legislation is winning the first crucial round in the House Interstate Commerce Committee.

The measure appears to have enough votes there to be reported to the full House.

If the Committee does that, the chamber will definitely act on it before this session adjourns.

Oil industry leaders have expressed doubts that could be managed. But Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.), veteran champion of the legislation, is all set to bring the bill before the House if it gets through the Interstate Commerce Committee. He has done that in the past, and can do it again.

It now appears very probable Rayburn will have that chance—on the basis of a secret poll of the 18 Democrats and 15 Republicans comprising this Committee.

This count shows a narrow majority in favor of the gas measure, as follows:

For—16; of which 10 are Republicans, 6 Democrats.

Against—14; of which 10 are Democrats, 4 Republicans.

Undecided—3; of which 2 are Democrats, 1 Republican.

The close margin for the bill could be overturned by the three fence-sitters. But the odds are against that, as two of them are listed as "leaning toward" the measure.

Inside Line-Up—The significant poll was made by bipartisan sponsors of the legislation, shortly after Rep. Oren Harris (D., Ark.) made public President Eisenhower's letter expressing general approval of it. Harris, committee chairman, and Rep. Joseph O'Hara, Minn., senior Republican committeeman, are co-authors of the bill.

They credit the President's endorsement of it as winning over at least four committeemen.

Following is the committee line-up according to this backstage count:

Against — 14: Representatives Peter Mack, Jr. (D., Ill.); Kenneth Roberts (D., Ala.); Harley Staggers (D., W. Va.); Isidore Dollinger (D., N. Y.); Samuel Friedel (D., Md.); Torbert Macdonald (D., Mass.); George Rhodes (D., Pa.); Leo O'Brien (D., N. Y.); John Moss (D., Calif.); John Dingell (D., Mich.); Charles Wolverton (R., N. J.); John Heselton (R., Mass.); John Bennett (R., Mich.); Paul Schenck (R., O.).

Undecided — 3: Representatives John J. Flynt, Jr. (D., Ga.); J. Carlton Loser (D., Tenn.); Will Neal (R., W. Va.). Flynt and Neal are reputedly "leaning toward" the measure.

How the full House will vote is conjectural. That outcome will depend on a number of factors. Last year, the chamber approved the legislation by a six-vote margin after a personal plea by Speaker Rayburn.

The outlook in the Senate is even more murky.

Senator Warren Magnuson (D., Wash.), chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, has flatly stated the measure won't be considered there this session. That would end it until next year.

But there is inside talk this blockade may be bypassed by Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson, Tex., who has long championed this legislation.

Under Johnson's reputed plan, he would seek to bring the bill directly before the Senate, instead of sending it to the Interstate Commerce Committee—the normal procedure. Such a move by Johnson would be exceptional, but not unprecedented.

The opposition would resist that strategy violently. So it might prove inadvisable in the hectic closing stages of this session.

It's still an open guess what will happen.

Cheers! Cheers!—A remarkable Senate tribute was paid Lister Hill (D., Ala.), head of the Appropriations Subcommittee handling the Public Health Service budget. Although it provided $32,000,000 more for the National Institutes of Health than was recommended by the President, the Senate approved the budget 71 to 0—after Republican and Democratic colleagues of Hill rose to praise him for these additional health funds. Not a single word of complaint was voiced in this extraordinary proceedings. It was a unique bipartisan "love feast" in honor of the veteran Alabaman. . . . Representative Charles Porter (D., Ore.) has introduced a bill he claims will save $60,000,000 for the Postoffice Department, at the same time speeding up its service. Under Porter's measure, the Department would be authorized to "make contracts with air carriers for large loads of mail at rates below those set by the Civil Aeronautics Board, whenever such action will result in lower postal rates to the public and savings to the public service."

Lightning Pulls Trick In Borough

By Jim Riley

Lightning pulled one of its famous tricks during a shower in the Stroudsburgs on Saturday afternoon.

Although the rain was light and the thunder was quiet, a bolt of lightning struck very close to six houses in the Hill Section.

It burned the light bulbs out of four houses, but didnt touch two homes in the midst of the four that felt the sting.

Summer storms certainly are unpredictable.

Miss Julia Berkes, who with her father, Louis Berkes, is spending some time at the Woodland Road Cottage, near Swiftwater, had a unique experience Monday morning.

While hanging up her laundry she heard a peculiar noise behind her. Turning around, she saw a black bear standing up on its hind legs between two laurel bushes, about 100 feet away.

So frightened that she couldn't run, Julia started to sing. The bear looked at her for awhile, then got down on all fours and calmly ambled away.

The cottage is located in the vicinity of Inwood Lodge and was recently sold to George Patrolack.

Earlier this month about 20 men employed by J. W. Sparks and Co. of 120 Broadway, New York, converged on Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wynne at their Summer home on Old Bushkill Road, Dingmans Ferry. The occasion was the office staff weekend house party given by Wynne, who has been floor partner of this stock exchange firm for several years.

The party has become an annual event, eagerly anticipated by members of the firm and four of them have a record of not having missed one of these weekends in 10 years.

All reportedly had a fine time acquiring a country sunburn and swimming in the Wynne's new pool.

Paying Home Business Deals In Specialties

By Anne Heywood

Most of us know better than to try to be all things to all people. Too often, when we start a home business, we forget our wisdom, try to make all things for all customers.

The lady who decides to bake at home will, all too often, make cakes, pies, cookies, bread and coffee cake—dozens of varieties of each, at that! Naturally, she cannot make a profit this way.

Wise Woman Specializes

The wise woman will take two or, at most three delicacies which she makes superbly and concentrate on them. In this way, she can buy her things in large, wholesale batches—it's much cheaper. She can standardize her pans and equipment, instead of needing different sizes and shapes. She can figure out assembly-line, time-saving schedules.

This is the experience of Mrs. K., although she makes ceramics, not baked goods.

"I figured out at the end of a year," she writes, "that I didn't break even! I made earrings, vases, ash trays, candlesticks and goodness knows what not. Whatever a customer wanted, I made, including dolls and lamp bases.

"What thanks do I get? Financially, I'm not even in the black after a year and I've worked hard!"

This is a case in point, Mrs. K. will have to narrow down to a few articles or, even better, just one kind. It's a personal choice, so her own likes and dislikes must be considered.

What She Enjoys

If she enjoys smoking, she'll do better with ash trays than if she never smokes. If she loves candlelight and well-set tables, she might do well with candlesticks.

She must analyze herself and try to decide which products give her the most pleasure. Then she should take one of them and make it her specialty.

Suppose she decides on vases—she loves flowers and wants to specialize in vases. She must absolutely refuse to make anything else for anyone. Friends and customers will argue at first but she must absolutely stick by her guns.

Specialist Makes Money

She can make all kinds of vases. For advertising purposes she can supply loan ones to flower shows and church parties. She can biuld up a regular clientele among flower-lovers. She can buy her equipment in big lots and she can build up a regular clientele the specialist who makes money nowadays!

Two Churches To Unite On Tuesday

By Paul Carlson

SOME 357 DELEGATES of the Evangelical and Reformed Church will march into the Cleveland Music Hall next Tuesday, accompanied by an equal number from the Congregational - Christian Church.

After marching side-by-side into the hall, the 714 delegates will participate in the first union of two major Protestant denominations with differing backgrounds, practices and forms of church government.

1,342,045 members; the Evangelical and Reformed Church 2,750 congregations and 775,000 members. Between them, the two communions have 1,298,235 pupils enrolled in their church schools.

"The two denominations complement each other in church distribution, one of them being strong in most areas where the other is weak," explained the Rev. Everett C. Parker, director of the Communication.

What happens in Cleveland that day will affect close to 2,000 members of the Evangelical and Reformed Church in Monroe County, along with 21,000 in the East Pennsylvania Synod, and more than 300,000 across the state.

Inside the music hall, the delegates will lift up their voices to God in prayer and petition Him to make them one communion. In this impressive atmosphere, the United Church of Christ will formally come into existence.

The new denomination, having more than two million members, will bring together a communion operating under the presbyterian system of government, and another which favored autonomous, or "free churches."

"It is true to history to say that one line will be marching in from 17th Century England and the other from the 16th Century Continent," remarked Dr. Douglas Horton, dean of Harvard Divinity School, and former moderator of the International Congregational Council.

It was the Congregationalists, or radical Puritan party of the Church of England, who chartered the Mayflower and poured into Massachusetts for two decades. They also treked westward during the period of the Northwest expansion, leaving behind them churches and colleges.

They have founded more than 15,000 churches and such famous colleges as Harvard, Yale, Oberlin, Amherst, and Dartmouth. The first Puritans to arrive on the Bay Colony's shores recorded that they had established Harvard lest they bequeathed to their children an illiterate ministry after their own pastors should lie in the dust.

Like the Congregationalists, the Evangelical and Reformed Church has also striven for a "learned ministry". Says Dr. Horto: "Neither has been infected by the appeal for that kind of ministry which steps from the plow to the pulpit."

Members of the E-R communion settled in the rich farmland of eastern and southern Pennsylvania during the great immigration of the Pennsylvania Dutch. After the Industrial Revolution, many of them immigrated to the Mississippi Valley.

Evangelical and Reformed people claim a rich theological heritage. They list Martin Luther, Ulrich Zwingli and John Calvin as their "spiritual ancestors," and brought with them to this country the Heidelberg Catechism.

Since their inceptions, both groups have insisted on democratic principles in church government and in the right of the individual to interpret Christ's mind to the church. However, Dr. Horton adds: "This right is placed in dialectic balance with the duty of the church to interpret Christ to the individual, but is never lost sight of."

The Harvard professor has noted that one of the biggest obstacles which plagued talks of merger concerned the matter of semantics. "One discovers that there is a Congregational-Christian and an Evangelical and Reformed language," Dr. Horton explained, "and that turns of language was to become a source of misunderstanding."

The uniting general synod of the new church will culminate 17 years of consultation and negotiations between representatives of the two groups.

Final approval of union was voted by both denominations in 1949, but action was delayed for more than four years when Cadman Congregational Church in Brooklyn, N. Y., entered into litigation to halt the merger. The New York Court of Appeals ruled against the plaintiffs in December, 1955. Steps were then taken to bring about formal union in 1957.

The Congregational - Christians have 5,561 churches and gregational-Christian Office of Communication.

Both denominations have always been in the vanguard of the ecumenical movement, furnishing leadership for the world and National councils of churches, as well as for state and local church councils.

Church mergers have taken place in the past. For example, Northern and Southern Methodists united, and plans are now being made to merge the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., with the United Presbyterian Church. However, this is the first merger of two groups with different governmental structures.

Pointing out that the Disciples of Christ have already indicated an interest in uniting with the new denomination at a future date, Mr. Parker commented:

"Protestant leaders throughout the world are following the plans for the formation of the United Church of Christ. It is expected that this union will set a pattern for future cooperative efforts."

Garage Door Styles Show Many Changes

GARAGE DOOR styles, hangings and materials have changed in four decades. They used to roll side-wise, as stable doors did before them. Then they got hinges and swung outward. Finally the overhead tracks on which they roll up took them up out of the way. Such doors seem to be the handiest and in greatest demand today.

In the beginning they were solid wood doors. Then they appeared in plywood and with added strength, then they were to be had in metal. The garage door gets into the material the car is made of.

Metal

Metal garage doors now appear with zinc coatings, ready to stand off the weather for decades. They can be painted easily when zinc faced. Though of metal, they are light enough to handle readily with their counterbalancing springs.

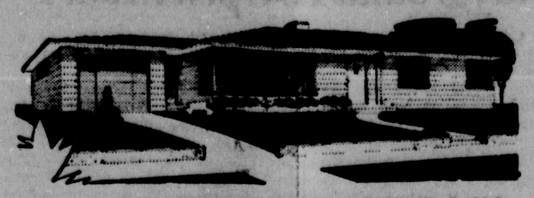

Such metal doors may be the forerunners of metal house construction, an idea that the metal industry has toyed with for years but has not come out with for assorted reasons. The metal gauge door may open the way.

Paint With Spray Gun

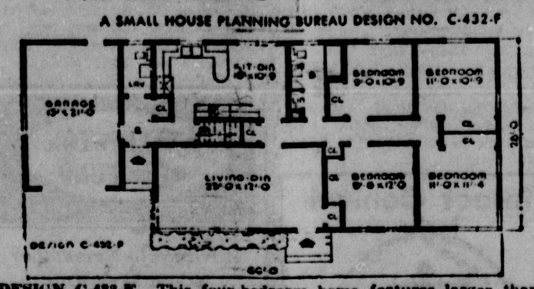

ALMOST all types of paint coatings can be applied with spray guns. And almost all types of surfaces can be coated in this manner. To prepare the paint you plan to use in a spray gun, be sure to follow the manufacturer's instructions. To remove all lumps and particles of skin, the material should be strained through cheese cloth or wire screen with mesh that will do the work efficiently.

When actually doing the job, hold the gun 6 to 10 inches from the object you're spraying. Move it across the surface with steady, even strokes that are made with a free arm motion. Keep the gun perpendicular to—and an equal distance from—the surface. It's a good idea, incidentally, to practice on cardboard or another surface until you get the knack of it.

Ten Times As Many Showers Sold Today As Decade Ago

TEN TIMES as many showers are sold today as a decade ago, according to the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau.

This fact, says the bureau, is indicative of the growing popularity of shower bathing. Sales of pre-fabricated metal shower cabinets as well as sales of showers installed over bathtubs have zoomed as Americans have enthusiastically adopted this method of bathing.

Increase

Tending to increase the popularity of shower bathing is the fact that manufacturers have been active in recent years in the development of many new products such as leak-proof metal pre-fabricated shower cabinets that can be assembled by one man in a short time; easy to clean showerheads; beautiful shower enclosures made of glass and plastic; controls that automatically maintain the desired temperature of the shower stream; and new types of shower receptors.

Special types of showers are available for installation over bathtubs in old homes. These installations can be made without marring the walls.

Shower cabinets, too, are suitable for modernization and can be installed in a space as small as 32 inches square and 76 inches high.

Staking Plants Large Task

STAKING garden plants is far from a one-time job. It must go on all through the rest of the growing season to take care of those that from now on are getting ready for their flower display. Some will be perfectly safe with pencil-thick bamboo stakes, but others need heavier ones to hold them up.

If the supports are placed soon after a prolonged soft rain they can in many cases be pushed into the ground deep enough to become firmly anchored. Pushing them in just slightly is most deceiving. While they may appear firmly settled, they will give little support when the earth is soaking wet.

Green string or twine will be satisfactory, but still stronger and much easier to use is the paper-covered wire especially made for tying plants.

Beware Of Bargains

WHEN buying towels, be suspicious of bargains with uneven weave and stretch. If the main part stretches more than the border or selvage, the towel may pucker after laundering.

Incorrect Way

THE WRONG way to put in a screw, is to pound it with a hammer.

Three Points Set Sales Price

KITCHEN, bathrooms and basement are the three most important areas which affect the selling price of a house, in the opinion of bankers and other lending officials.

These men who decide on how large a loan they can safely make on a house, say that in most cases the woman buys the house. Her husband may sign the check, but generally she has the final word. So to bring the best price, a house must have a spacious and modern kitchen, ample and up-to-date bathing facilities, and a basement large enough to accommodate storage, workshop and possibly a recreation room.

Sewing Table Made Quickly

THE SURFACE of a sewing table must be perfectly smooth, easily cleaned and snag-proof. One of the easiest and most economical ways to get such a surface is to cut a panel of plastic finished hardwood to fit the top of any old table. It is much quicker to apply such a surface with adhesive than to attempt refinishing the table top.

Plastic finished hardboard is available at well-stocked lumber yards, predecorated in solid colors, simulated wood grains and marble patterns.

Tricot In New Width

SEAMLESS acetate tricot draperies designed to cover picture windows with no unsightly middle seam are available in a new width—152 inches. This is the first time that tricot has been knit in such a great width.

Variety Of Styles

PLYWOOD is adaptable to a variety of fencing styles.

Method Big Factor In Good Painting

THE METHOD by which paint is applied will determine whether the job has a workmanlike appearance, or is streaked and unsatisfactory.

An outside wall should be painted in horizontal bands or strips, the width being determined by the distance the painter is able to reach from his ladder or scafford. Work starts at the highest point and moves down.

An inside wall is painted in vertical bands or strips from ceiling to floor, starting in a corner. Ceiling painting starts in corner and proceeds in bands or strips across the width of the room.

Spread

Paint is always spread in small areas and brushed out well in all directions to make a smooth even coat. Final strokes should all be in one direction. The brush should not be dipped into the can more than half its length.

Each new section should be blended with the section just painted so there will be no streaks.

When painting trim, a sheet of cardboard or sheet metal held against the area being painted will protect the wall from unsightly smears. The guard should be wiped frequently to prevent paint seeping behind it.

Paint should be kept well stirred in the can.

New Lease On Life

DOOR KNOBS and lock plates which are too worn and decrepit-looking to respond to polishing can be given a new lease on life. Remove them from the doors and give them a smooth and durable coating of enamel to harmonize with the door—or to contrast.

If you wish to make them a point of decorative interest, designs can be painted on with an artist's brush. Over such designs, apply a coat of clear varnish.

Check Your Window Putty

ROT of wood sash windows and rust on metal sash can be forestalled by periodic checkups on window putty. When there are signs that the putty is separating from the glass, it is prudent to replace it. A good priming coat of paint is called for before new putty is applied. This will prevent the wood from soaking up the oil in the putty. After the putty has had several days to dry it should be painted.

Pocono Playhouse

Actors Earn Praise In Opening Show

By Leonard Randolph

POCONO Playhouse opened its 11th season Monday night with a witty and stylish production of Terrence Rattigan's "The Sleeping Prince".

Rattigan's script has weaknesses. But the actors in the present production acquit themselves with a remarkable degree of expertness.

"The Sleeping Prince" is a comedy (it is described as an "occasional fairy tale" by its author and we may as well bow to his judgment) with a somewhat eternal message: That love is the one thing we need most in life and that once we let someone love us rather marvelous things begin to happen.

This may seem simple enough. Since the hero of the story is a Grand Duke from a mythical kingdom called Carpathia whose second wife was acquired through political expedience, whose son is a total stranger to him and whose idea of "love" is an awkward compound of stereotyped, half-hearted attempts at seduction and businessman's promiscuity, the message is harder to deliver and more valuable because of that. In this case the charming, attractive and initially unavailable young lady who delivers the thought is an American musical actress named "Mary Morgan, whose stage name, to avoid confusion, is Elaine Dagenham" as Rattigan puts it.

Falls In Love

The actress is invited to the Carpathian legation to dine. Once there, she finds that the after-the-atre supper is really a tete-a-tete, decides to play along with the gag, turn the Duke down—and then falls in love with him instead. The remainder of the play branches off into a series of comic scenes between the actress, the Grand Duchess, the young King and an English attache to the legation.

In the end the duke and the showgirl have the affair. It is brief, hardly poignant. Before it happens the ruler of men has learned something about the human heart. There is nothing pressing about the "message" in the play; it is pure entertainment in its intentions. Rattigan, unfortunately, has not delivered a solid play, and his intentions suffer for it.

All of the leading roles are played well. Joan McCracken is a constant delight as the actress. She has one scene, in particular, in which she has a chance to demonstrate her facial expressiveness while the Duke talks business on the phone. It comes at a time when a slow-moving first act needs it. Tamara Geva plays the Duchess with precise style and excellent comic timing.

Francis Lederer has the part of the middle-aged Duke. It is the major role in the play and Lederer gives it a great deal of bombast and vocal calisthenics. His performance was a little more in the grand manner than either the part or the play would seem to demand, but it had many fine moments.

Acting

The best piece of acting in the play is turned in by Rex O'Malley who is cast as "Northbrook", the Englishman. O'Malley is, in his own way, flawless in the part. Rattigan has fallen back, again, on a stereotype of the calm, unruffled English commentator, however, in writing it. There is a fine supporting performance by Richard Striker as the young king.

Smaller parts are played by Herbert Voss, John Ryan, Stuart Smith, Susan Schnabel, Karen George, Margaret Neff - Jerome, Richard Longman and Lynn Thatcher. With the exception of Miss Thatcher, who never seemed to be quite in the spirit of the proceedings, these were all good.

I thought John O'Shaughnessy's staging was highly commendable throughout and especially in respect to the minor roles. There is a set by Ballou which could hardly be more fitting and a collection of properties brought together by Roger Celler which is exactly right for the Carpathian legation.

On the basis of the acting, some genuinely funny lines and an atmosphere of human warmth in the middle of royal artificiality, "The Sleeping Prince" can be recommended as a pleasant way to spend a Summer night.

George Johnson Earns Praise For Current Show At East Stroudsburg's Gallery Art Club

EDITOR'S NOTE—Sterling Strauser, well known area artist, today reviews the second show of the season at the Gallery Art Club.

By Sterling Strauser

THE ART critic, Henry McBride, used to write reviews which persuaded readers to go see for themselves.

George Johnson's show, currently running at the Gallery Art Club in East Stroudsburg, deserves this kind of review.

If you have been unable to carry out your good intentions to steal a few minutes from that buying trip to the city to drop into one of the museums or galleries to see what is cooking in the art world beyond the foot hills of the Poconos, here is your chance.

Invention is the word for Johnson. Do not expect to find nostalgic reports of sketching trips into picturesque territory, nor covers for Chamber of Commerce booklets, nor echoes of Redfield, or Garber, or Andy Weyth, but if you are willing to swap all these for a modest portion of pure inventive creation presented in a soft-spoken intelligent manner, you will be rewarded for the climb up the stairs.

Exciting

The metal sculpture is exciting. Placed near the large gallery windows overlooking that period piece of 1908, the DL&W Station, it offers some thought provoking contrasts. When the town fathers modernized East Stroudsburg by tearing out the hitching posts little did they realize that avant garde sculpture would some day find its way to Crystal Street.

"The City" is an eloquent arrangement of space and scale, entertaining the eye with its infinite variety. "Orator" suggests a weird communication. This flag-waver is not using a simple two-flag semaphore system. "Signals" has touches of color as well as texture added to form.

The wood carvings suggest gay nautical motifs and are executed with disciplined craftmanship.

The water colors are tentative and exploratory. The lithographs seem like complete and authorative statements in a code language. Here again the artist demonstrates his inventive nature.

The second show consists of nine oil paintings by Lili Krag, who came to this country in 1943, having been born and educated in Poland. She gave up a career as fashion designer to devote her time to painting.

Numbers

Paintings number four, number 10, and number 11 could hold their own very well if shown separately, but they suffer like all the rest of these paintings from the monotonous uniformity of size, proportion, and subject matter.

Number four, a still life, is strong in design and original in treatment, somewhat suggestive of Braque or Picasso.

Number 11 is a more realistic study of pale apples which somehow manages to convey the fragrance of apples more that the solidity of the fruit. It is the most finished and most sensitively handled painting in this show. I overheard one interested viewer remark, "That still life with apples is painted the way Jules Pascin painted women", which compliment would be hard to surpass.

This artist has used yellow, white and gray in this painting and several of the others in a subtle and personal manner which suggests that she may be aware of and is searching for an inner reality in the subject matter more significant and more important than visual reality.

Area Antique Dealers In 'Cape May Run'

FIVE Stroudsburg area antique automobile owners will participate in the annual "Cape May Run," sponsored by the Antique Automobile Club of America on Sunday.

Local antique motorists and their respective entries follow: Verdon Rustine, Stroudsburg, 1913 Moyer; Carl Rustine, Stroudsburg, 1913 Ford; Sterling Walter, Shawnee-on-Delaware, 1903 Cadillac; Andrew Keiser, Stroudsburg, 1928 Packard; and Forrest Bonser, Stroudsburg, 1918 Ford.

More than 100 autos of early vintage will chug their way to the historic seashore resort at the tip of the Jersey Cape to raise the curtain on the 191st year of Cape May's history as a seashore resort.

With owners, drivers and passengers attired in costumes of the early 1900's, the ancient automobiles will parade along famous Beach drive, paralleling the beaches where pioneers of the automobile industry raced their creations shortly after the turn of the century.

The parade will travel on principal streets of the resort to give thousands of early-season visitors and vacationists an opportunity to view the predecessors of today's sleek cars.

The visiting antique autoists will be guests of the City of Cape May and the Chamber of Commerce at an outdoor barbecue at the American Legion Home grounds Sunday afternoon.

Your Horoscope Today

By FRANCIS DRAKE

FOR WEDNESDAY, JUNE 19, 1957

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Where can you improve, even in little ways? Think about it today, and work on at least one improvement. Many good "little" things make up a grand whole.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)—Some adverse influences now suggest that you carefully separate the chaff from the wheat, stay with your duties and keep to the straightest road.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)—Systematic methods will help activities greatly. The day offers benefits, but you will have to do things right, too.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Talk matters over calmly, reason out difficulties or differences rather than get upset and have heated discussions. You may meet an old acquaintance.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Here is a day in which to become better acquainted with yourself and your family; enjoy children's company, help others to smile and be happier. Your attitude will set an example.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—Make up your mind you are going to remain calm no matter what comes up. In this way you will handle things with less trouble, and not become overtired.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Plans not completely formulated can be made more efficient now. Private matters may require delicate handling, but can be successful. Bolster hope and confidence in others, and your own will increase.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Wishing isn't doing as you people well realize. But anxiety, haste are also ineffective. Strike that steady, progressive happy medium, and take time off for relaxation occasionally.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius)—The outlook may seem to read "inactive, non-productive." But you can turn the tide to achievement with faith, consistent endeavor and optimism; give generously of Sagittarius' self-reliance and enterprising talents.

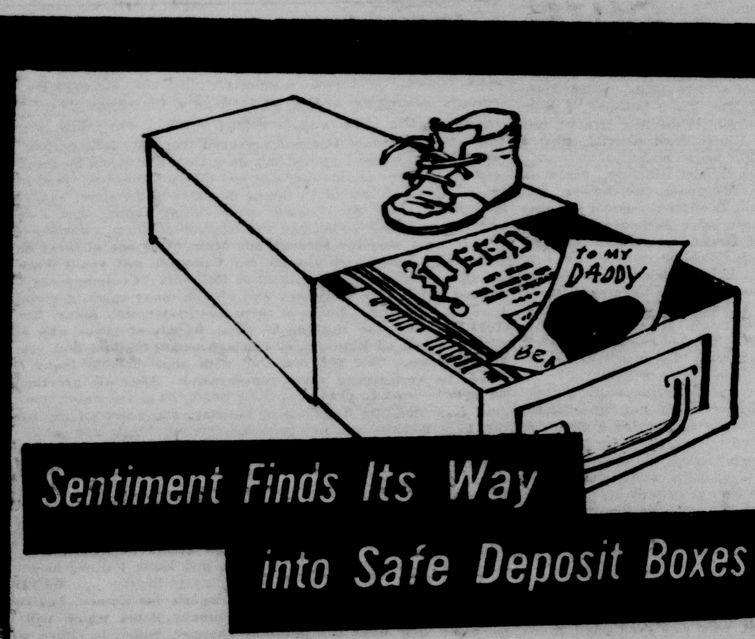

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn)—Says so-so. Pitch in, don't let a pessimistic note dominate your day or you may be swamped. Your own attitude will greatly govern results—as it so often does.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius)—Uranus in excellent aspect now. Activities highly favored: outdoor pursuits, electronics, aeronautics, experiment, the initiation of new methods.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces)—This day's influences are more auspicious than you may surmise at first. Your knack for making good deductions will help considerably. So will a spirit of stick-to-it-iveness.

YOU BORN TODAY: Still under Gemini, this birthdate is also under the rising influence of Cancer. You are a casual native, born at the change of Signs. The combination makes for a highly sensitive, intelligent, artistic, imaginative, inventive nature—one who loves family dearly, but also likes travel, new things, finds interest in the workings of other minds. Associate with healthy, happy individuals. You are very energetic, but do try to cultivate consistency in your activities. Birthdate of: Blaise Pascal, Fr. philosopher, mathematician.

Sentiment Finds Its Way into Safe Deposit Boxes

A card sent by a daughter to her dad was found in a safe deposit box, among stocks, bonds and other securities.

It read, " 'Father's day may be of questionable merit—but not so fathers, especially mine; a pal in my childhood, counselor in adolescence and understanding friend in adulthood."

Keep safe your keepsakes—as well as your tangible assets—in a safe deposit box, which costs as little as $3.00 a year, plus tax, at the Stroudsburg Security Trust Company.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby WestBrook

A wave is something you jump over, swim with or dive through, depending on the size, but it isn't something you live in for days on end. Wherefore, if I had the energy, I'd argue with you that we're not having a heat wave.

Oh it's hot enough, but none of the usual heat wave tactics work when it lasts so long. Ordinarily during a hot day—we can let the work slide, have cold cuts and salad for dinner, and let the babies stay up, catching fireflies, until the bedrooms cool off.

But after a week of letting the work slide, things get complicated. Everybody runs out of clean clothes just when they need to change them most often. The lawn begins to look like a hay field. And a dim film of dust over all the furniture doesn't make the house any cooler.

After a week of cold cuts and salads, appetites start rebelling and stomachs and dispositions both get upset hot dinners are in order. Bedtimes keep getting later and later, and sleepy people get crankier and crankier.

So maybe we'd better just learn to live in a tropical climate. It's possible, I guess, because a lot of people do — but about all I know about tropical living is that they have to use mosquito nets around their beds and take siestas in the heat of the day.

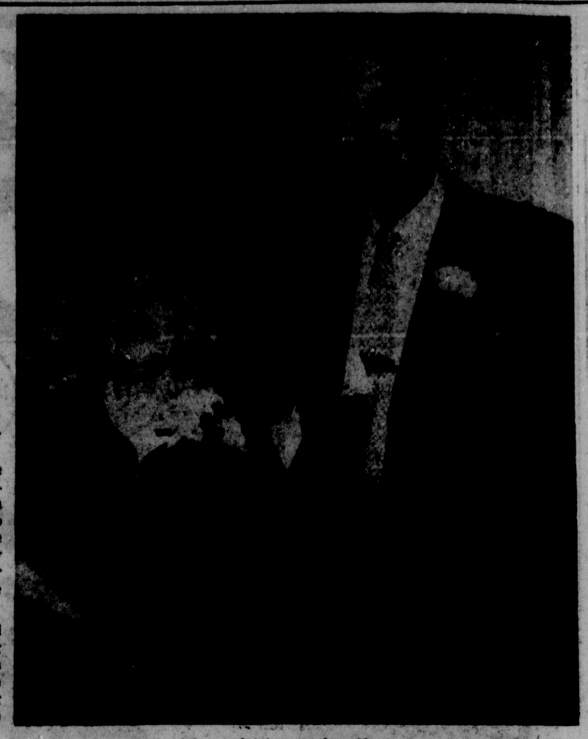

I guess maybe the siestas are the things most of you remember, too. At any rate the whole town seems to be sleeping these days. Parking Places galore, streets wide and empty, and the only thing stirring the family carloads driving around to stir up a breeze.

Shower Of Gold For Kramer's 50th Wedding Anniversary

Panther—The shower of rice which started Elizabeth and Arthur Kramer off on a wedding trip on June 12, 1907, turned to a shower of gold on Sunday, June 16, when 150 friends, neighbors and relatives gathered to honor them at an open house marking their golden wedding anniversary.

Rev. William McMillen united Elizabeth Heberling, daughter of Edward and Ellen Heberling, and Arthur Kramer, son of Charles and Wilhelmina Kramer in a ceremony performed at the bride's home in Panther.

Life has been busy for the couple since that day 50 years ago. Educated in Newfoundland school and East Stroudsburg State Normal School, Arthur Kramer became a school teacher in Pike and Lackawanna Counties for ten years. Thirty-five years ago, he took over the management of the Kramer Farm, which then became Panther Cottage for summer guests.

County Treasurer

He was elected Pike County treasurer in 1920 for a four-year term. He is presently the senior member of the Board of Directors of the First National Bank of Moscow, and serves as its vice president.

He is a Past District Deputy Grand Master, Salem Lodge 330, Free and Accepted Masons, and is a member of the Supreme Council. Mrs. Kramer is a member of the Greene-Dreher Chapter, Order of Eastern Star.

The Kramers have lived in the Panther area all of their lives, and are both lifelong members of the Moravian Church, first at German Valley, a church which united in 1956 with the Newfoundland Church of which they are now members. Mr. Kramer has been Sunday School superintendent for 35 years, and is a member of the Board of Elders.

Bridesmaid Present

At the Sunday open house, Mrs. Kramer's sister, Mary Pyle, of Panther, who served as her bridesmaid, was present. Other family members present were Mrs. Marvin Smith and family, and the Edward Low family, all of Stroudsburg.

Guests from Long Island, Philadelphia, New York City, Hohokus, N. J., Scranton, Moscow, Stroudsburg and Newfoundland and its surrounding communities arrived to help the Kramers celebrate the occasion. Gifts, flowers, cards and best wishes added to the pleasure the Kramer found in welcoming old friends, many of whom they had not seen for several years.

Mrs. Kramer wore a white orchid for the event. The tables were beautifully decorated in white and gold, and a lovely wedding cake served as a centerpiece. Roses, mountain laurels, and other seasonal flowers were used effectively in the decorative scheme.

Touring Scouts Make First 'Attempt At Using Chopsticks

(The special Scout correspondents to The Daily Record were faithful in writing their reports but a canoe trip delayed mailing. Consequently three special reports arrived yesterday).

June 12, from Sheila Doyle: As usual our campers rose about 6:30 a. m., but unlike other mornings the clouds hung dark and low over Camp McNeil on the Miramichi. This, however, fazed none of our 16 teen-age campers.

Much of the morning was spent in eating and cleaning up. For lunch, Sun Ai Chou, our Korean chaperone, fixed fried rice. Several of us made out first attempt at eating with chopsticks. The rice was very delicious and disappeared quickly.

By afternoon, most of us were quite well acquainted with our 13 Canadian guides. Among other things, they taught us how to carve whistles from sticks. As evening rolled around, it seemed that many of the guides should be sorry they ever started this as everyone was going around the camp blowing whistles.

Songs on River Bank

We finished cooking supper about 6 p. m., and just as the dinner call was sounded, the rain began to fall, forcing us to rush everything from our outdoor fireplace to the cabin porch. Five minutes later, the rain ceased.

For several hours after dinner, the guides entertained us by doing tricks. At 10 we went down to the banks of the Miramichi, seating ourselves around a large fire to sing songs while a guide played the harmonica. Before retiring for the night we made our circle and sang taps.

Thus ended another eventful and precious day in the lives of our 22 campers on our trip on the Miramichi.

Riding the Rapids

June 13, from Sylvia Smith: We awakened this morning to the sound of airplanes overhead. Judy Kohn thought that they were giant mosquitoes trying to enter her tent. As soon as we had breakfast and washed up we were "happy on the way" by boat.

After an enjoyable morning's ride we stopped for lunch. Since they got so hungry in the morning, John Taylor and Ron Gouger stocked up on cookies and other food for the afternoon ride.

On our afternoon voyage we went through the swift Burnt Hill rapids—no casualties. At about 4 o'clock we stopped at our camping grounds for the night. We found it much more enjoyable since there were not so many bugs. No one has fallen out of a boat as yet but numerous people have fallen in the river while washing faces and cleaning teeth. Today was no exception. However, it was an exception when Herman Taylor caught no fish.

Korean Food

For supper we had a delicious Korean dish prepared by Sun Ai Chou. Some of the girls again tried eating with chopsticks, Korean-style.

After supper we heard John Mitchell saying to Larry Christian "I haven't got anything." He was referring to the fact that he had left his duffle bag at the Griff Inn and has nothing but a sleeping bag. However, he is taking all of this in his stride and is more cheerful than any of us could be in the same spot. In fact, Mr. Mitchell informed us he is having a wonderful time and thinks his wife should take the trip some time.

As darkness came upon us we had a camp fire down on the rocks and sang some of our favorite songs. We had a midnight snack of bacon, cocoa and cookies. We were supposed to have a cherry punch but thanks to the combined efforts of Ron Gouger, Henry Shultz and Jerry Ifft, the punch was absorbed by the ground. After singing taps, we turned in for the night.

Planes Over Wilderness

June 14, from Jennet Cramer: We awoke bright and early at 5 o'clock this morning, although a few of us were awakened earlier by the sound of airplanes flying overhead around 4 a. m.

Johnny Kintz was head cook in the kitchen this morning and rustled up some pancakes for breakfast.

We were well on our way when we went to see Fall Brook Falls. It is supposed to be approximately 100 feet high. As we walked back to our canoes, it began to drizzle. The half of us who had left our raincoats in our duffel bags got drenched.

I think most of us are still wondering why we ate lunch at 10:30 in the morning, but I suppose it was in order to dry off.

Return To Camp

During the day Henry Shultz and Larry Christian sang to us. We saw familiar Boiestown again about 2 o'clock and loafed the rest of the day. After our delightful dinner of fresh salmon was over, we all played tag and hide and go-seek.

Before going to bed, we all gathered around the fireplace and sang songs. As the girls climbed the stairs to their room we heard terrifying screams coming from Sue Wicks. It seems that Sue's raincoat had attached itself to the stove pipe in our room.

We are now all resting quietly so I have a chance to bring this letter to a close.

THE Wyckoff SHOPPER

Among my favorite people are Diana and Lester Cohen, and I was delighted when they dropped by Sunday evening for an all-too-brief hour. They didn't come empty handed—but bearing beautiful red and pink roses. Not just a bouquet, mind you, but practically two entire bushes standing nearly as high as a Christmas tree. Never having vases of the right size, it seems to me, I was ready to get busy with the shears when Diana discovered that they look perfect as is in one of the giant-sized apothecary jars from our store. So there they are, in my living room, looking just too lovely for words. You know, ONE of these days I intend to invest in vases of all sizes, shapes, and colors —just in case the Cohans come calling again. And I certainly hope they will—they're among the most interesting residents of our county . . . If you wander through our Main Floor one of these days and hear tittering, head straight for our Cardcade and you'll learn the reason. At the entrance is a rackful of Hallmark "Contemporary Cards", illustrated with line drawings that are, in many cases, grotesque, and very tersely worded. Some of them are hysterically funny. But be warned! THESE are for mailing to those friends of yours who either have a pixie sense of humour, or can appreciate the fact that you do. If your friends are "on the fencers" with unpredictable funny bones, better stick to something more conservative. After all, greetings are meant to greet—not to grate . . . Olive Bond, the gifted water color artist, shopped our notions department Monday, and accepted my congratulations on her handsome new red-upholstered, black and white Studebaker. Back from a winter sojourn in Floria, Miss Bond tells me she's now added landscape and birds to her painting program, which she previously limited to flowers. "If you're interested, run back to Walter Logan's department and see the painting he's just framed as a wedding gift," she urged. I did—and it will undoubtedly be much cherished by the recipients. Olive, incidentally, has about eight of her paintings on display now in the East Room at the Inn, Buck Hill Falls, along with the paintings of Bob Logan and Edna Palmer Engelhardt. Prior to that, 26 "Bonds" were on display at Skytop . . . WELDON, creator of some of our most delightful lingerie for women, has come up with several very clever two-for-the-money items which will undoubtedly go over big with the feminine shopper. Suited to either indoor or outdoor wear, sleep or play, these are Bermuda Short Pajamas. One is particularly practical, for it combines a top and shorts of checked never-iron plisse with a terry fingertip-length coat suitable for wear on the beach or wherever an extra wrap might be needed. The terry is used as a binding on the pajamas, which have an extended wide and bare mandarin-type collar, and the plisse is in turn used as trim on the pockets and sleeves of the terry coat. The complete set is packed in a very practical clear-plastic zippered accessory bag with handle, and is priced at 9.98. Another Weldon style, at 5.98, is of checked woven gingham with lacy "sissy" front, and plain broadcloth shorts. Both come in sizes 32 to 38, in either pink and white or blue or white. Just think how practical these two-in-one items are when you pack for a vacation! . . . I'd thought "Mr. E. H." wasn't planning to return from his Scout trip to Canada until Tuesday, so it was a pleasant surprise to see and hear him on our Main Floor Monday morning. He had a wonderful time, he said, and certainly looked it, with his eyes and smile as bright as silver dollars. Just between us, as fine as the Scouts are, "Papa" is the best scout of all, and it's just not the same store when he's away . . . "Rural Ideals" is the name of another "Ideals" book just making its appearance in our stationery department. These 1.00 publications are handsomely illustrated and make thoughtful gifts for those who enjoy reading wholesome, sentimental philosophy . . . Betty Bartholomew, Lillian Sullivan and I stole away from our jobs long enough Friday afternoon to sip tea at the concluding event of the First Stroudsburg National Bank's 100th anniversary. It was a pleasant affair with Mrs. Frances Kiffin, Mrs. Robert Bixler, Mrs. Nelson Frantz, Mrs. Harry Miller, and dozens of others on hand. "Casey" Drake—husband of Marion in our children's department—escorted us into the walnut paneled board room with its red and blonde furniture, where I was particularly interested in the portrait of A. Mitchell Palmer, our nation's former attorney general, who still looks on in piercing-eyed interest. I remember him well—a vibrant voiced gentleman who had the gift of striking me speechless with awe whenever I confronted him. (All right, Mr. President, he did so!!!)

CLAIR BEE is a very sound man. You have to figure that's the way it should be. For Bee is one of the greatest basketball coaches ever to give out with advice in the last half century.

His great teams at Long Island University, Rider College are good reasons why the current member of the instructing staff at the Coaches Clinic at ESSTC reached the heights.

Today, Bee is retired from big-time basketball. But big-time wisdom is still in his veins and the words that came out of the mouth of this builder of champions are enough to give any beginning coach a head start on the field.

We asked Bee who was the greatest all-around player he ever coached. Clair pondered and said, "that is a tough question." But a moment later he countered with "Ozzie" Schectman. However, the Bee mind came back quickly with Irv Torgoff, Bill King, Jules Bender as great all-around court performers in LIU history.

The talk then got around to shooting and we remarked that shooters are born not made. Bee was quick to point out however, that he could teach a boy to shoot in two weeks. Thus kicking out our version "they're born to be great."

The new head of New York Military Academy gave us an out, however, when he said, "Scorers are born." This he pointed out later is a sixth sense where a lad has the jump on the others in one department of putting them through the hoop. "A scorer is not bashful, otherwise he wouldn't be a scorer. The point-getter takes advantage of the small openings and fires away, where the shooter waits for a good shot before setting his sights on the basket."

Bee told the roundtable discussion a story that had never made the rounds before and what was probably the only time a coach ever had to act in an unwanted capacity of throwing out his star player.

The situation arose when the then LIU president at the time was on a leave and Bee was named acting head of the Long Island school.

It so happened that Red Meinhold, another one of Bee's court greats and the team's star during the early 40s was just the opposite scholastically. The LIU Dean of Instruction ordered the dismissal of Meinhold from school. Bee as head of the university acted on the order and dropped Meinhold out of LIU.

Bee says today, it is probably the first time that a player of Meinhold's caliber was dropped from school by a coach who wanted and needed him more than words could describe.

Meinhold just wasn't the studious type, Bee recollected. But as a basketball player he was unstoppable. Bee noted that Red practiced hours after the squad had quit drills. "He worked hard in every phase of the game," Bee noted. "If he had just put a little of this abundant court effort on his books, LIU would have had him for two more years."

Bee sees college basketball in New York at a low ebb. From his vantage point, any one of the schools adorning the Gotham territory could put together a quintet capable of defeating the bets in the nation.

He cited the all-New York five of Frank McGuire's at North Carolina University as the type of player molded in the Metropolitan area.

"If a team could win 18 out of 20 games and give the fans victory basketball, the sport would come forward again in New York."

The talk got around to professional basketball. Bee is no novice in this department, having coached and owned a good part of the Baltimore entry in the National Basketball Association.

"There is quite a difference in tutoring pros and collegians," he said. "The play-for-pay boys are not coachable. They look at the records—points made, shots tried, missed, etc.—and govern themselves by the figures," Bee analyzed.

The man who oft-times has been labeled Mr. LIU and Mr. Gotham in basketball is semi-retired from the game. His coaching is on a small scale, without any fanfare or pressure.

But it would be a blessing to basketball if Clair Bee didn't fade away like an old soldier but returned full blast with his doctrine of champions.

Newk Blanks Redlegs, 7-0

CINCINNATI, June 18 (AP)—Burly Don Newcombe shut out Cincinnati's Redlegs on five hits tonight and belted a home run—his first of the season — in a rain-spattered 7-0 Dodger triumph.

Musial Leads Balloting For NL All-Star Team

NEW YORK, June 18 (AP)— Roy McMillan of Cincinnati today held a slim 44 vote-edge over Alvin Dark of St. Louis in the fan voting for the shortstop berth on the National League All-Star team.

McMillan, last year's All-Star choice, had 10,282 votes to Dark's 10,238, according to figures released by the office of Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick. The game will be played in St. Louis, Tuesday, July 9.

Stan Musial continued to run away with the first base position. The Cardinal star has piled up 28,288 to 3,873 for runner-up Gil Hodges of Brooklyn.

Close races were in prospect for two positions besides that of shortstop. Ed Mathews, Milwaukee's slugging third baseman, had only a 4,000 vote lead over Don Hoak of Cincinnati and Red Schoendienst, the Braves' new second baseman, led Johnny Temple of the Redlegs by about 3,500 votes.

Set Outfield

Willie Mays of the New York Giants, Cincinnati's Frank Robinson and Milwaukee's Henry Aaron, appeared safely on the way to win the three outfield posts. Ed Bailey, Redleg catcher, had a handsome lead over Brooklyn's Roy Campanella for the first string catching job.

The voting:

First base—Stan Musial, St. Louis, 28,883; Gil Hodges, Brooklyn, 3,873; Joe Adcock, Milwaukee, 3,380.

Yank Castoff Blanks A's

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—Virgil Trucks fanned Art Schult of Washington with the bases loaded and two out in the ninth tonight to preserve a 2-0 victory for Ralph Terry, ex-Yankee pitcher making his debut with Kansas City. Louis Skizas and Vic Power slammed home runs for the Athletics.

Terry, who had a no-hitter for 5 2-3 innings, was in trouble in the ninth after Roy Sievers doubled with two down. Jim Lemon walked and Lou Berberet singled to load the bases before Trucks fanned Schult on three pitches.

Skizas slammed his 11th homer off Ted Abernathy, the loser, in the second inning. Power swatted his fifth in the ninth inning off Bud Byerly.

Bucco Rookie Cools Cards

ST. LOUIS, June 18 (AP)—Pittsburgh bonus rookie Art Swanson, making his first major league start, stopped the St. Louis Cardinals tonight on four hits, 8-1, as ex-Cardinal Bill Virdon came back to haunt them with two home runs.

Swanson, 20, a righthander from Monroe, La, by way of Louisiana State cooled off the Redbirds who opened a home stand after a sizzling Eastern swing which ended with three straight victories at Brooklyn.

Alvin Dark beat out a hit to first baseman Dee Fondy in the fourth and Stan Musial smashed a single off the glove of Paul Smith who had backed to the rightfield wall in the seventh.

These were the only Cardinal hits until the ninth when a walk to Don Blasingame, a pair of infield outs and Del Ennis, infield single scored the only St. Louis run. Ken Boyer then singled but Swanson got Wally Moon to end it.

Brown Wins 'Bout' Over Light Gloves

By LOUDON KELLY

DENVER, June 18 (AP) — Lightweight champion Joe Brown notched a victory today before even pulling on a glove for his 15-round title fight with Cuba's Orlando Zulueta tomorrow night.

The Colorado State Athletic Commission ruled that the fighters must wear six-ounce gloves instead of the usual eight-ounce mittens called for by the state code.

They will clash at 9 p.m., EST at the Denver Coliseum with ABC carrying the fight on both television and radio.

The Brown camp hailed the lighter glove ruling with delight. The champion from Houston, Tex., has predicted he'll knock Zulueta out within six rounds because he considers himself a much stronger puncher, but that he needs a smaller glove to get the job done.

Prefers 8-Ounce

Hymie Wallman, manager of Zulueta, said he preferred the eight-ounce glove, "but we'll go along with the commission." The Cuban is counting on his boxing skill to keep the Texan from landing a sleep producer as well as pile up enough points for him to dispossess Brown of his crown.

Although Zulueta has been beaten 27 times in 100 bouts, he never has been counted out. Brown has lost 14 of his 87 professional fights.

The commission also tossed out for this fight the rules that a fighter, after a knockdown, must stay down for an eight-count and that three knockdowns in one round constitute a technical knockout.

$25,000 Check

A certified check for $25,000, representing Brown's guarantee, was sent to the commission by promoter Joe Dupler. The champion has the alternative of taking 40 per cent of the combined receipts if he wishes. Zulueta gets 20 per cent.

Dupler said a pickup in ticket sales indicates a gate of at least $30,000, with about 5,000 in the 11,000-seat arena. The Denver area will not see the bout on its TV screens.

Boston Rally Short By One

BOSTON, June 18 (AP) Cleveland staved off a frantic ninth inning Red Sox rally tonight to edge Boston 7-6 in a home run derby. Rookie Roger Maris' homer proved decisive for the Tribe.

Chico Carrasquel tagged a two-run homer while Vic Wertz and Rocky Colavito contributed bases empty blows for Cleveland.

Riding a 7-2 lead, Indian relief specialis Ray Narleski staggered through the ninth when a Mickey Vernon single and a tremendous three-run homer by Jackie Jensen brought a Fenway Park crowd of 28,510 to its feet after two were out.

Ray got out of it when Gene Mauch flied to left for the final out standings Frank Malzone, who singled, on first.

Shantz Wins 8th, Stops Detroit, 2-1

NEW YORK, June 18 (AP)—Little Bobby Shantz, 31, cut the Tiger's winning streak at five games tonight, giving up seven hits and striking out six for a 2-1 New York Yankee victory. It was Shantz's eighth victory of the season, and the seventh in a row for the southpaw who hasn't lost to Detroit since 1950.

Bobby Richardson, whose play at second base set up Billy Martin's trade to Kansas City; drove in both runs for the Yankees, who have won five in a row.

Hoeft Loser

Southpaw Billy Hoeft, whose lone victory this season was 4-1 against the Yankees, lost his fourth, giving up the second of Andy Carey's doubles and the first of Richardson's two singles as New York cracked a 1-1 tie in the fifth inning.

The Yankees opened the scoring in the third when Carey doubled, Shantz beat out an infield hit and Richardson lofted a sacrifice fly.

Detroit tied it in the top of the fifth on one of the two walks Shantz gave up, a force out, Frank Bolling's single and Charlie Maxwell's double.

Several projects to raise funds will be discussed and later put in force prior to the "trip to Shawnee."

Last year the Mountaineers trained at Sun Mountain also under the sponsorship of the "S" group.

At today's session of the organization president Somers will hand over the club's reins to newly elected head Warren (Mag) Loney. Other officers also will be installed at the meet.

Phils Trip Bruins Via Grand Slam

CHICAGO, June 18 (AP) — Two homers, a grand slammer by rookie Harry Anderson and a three-run blast by Rip Repulski, gave the third-place Philadelphia Phils a 7-6 victory over the last-place Chicago Cubs today.

Both drives, the first off loser Dave Hillman, sailed out of the park. Anderson leveled on a 3 and 2 pitch by Dick Littlefield after the Phillies had loaded the bases against Hillman via Jack Sanford's lead-off double and walks to Richie Ashburn and Gran Hamner.

Jim Hearn worked the final four and one-third innings in relief for the sidelined starter Sanford.

This success added up to Hearn's first win of the year and the No. 100 of his major league career. Hearn last won, as a member of the New York Giants, against Brooklyn on Aug. 15, 1956.

After scoring a fourth inning run on Ernie Banks' single and Moose Moryn's double, the Cubs finally kayoed Sanford in the fifth.

Chuck Tanner hit a bases-full double for the first three runs, and Jim Bolger followed with a pinch home run.

Bolger was batting for Banks, who was forced to retire from the game with a pulled muscle in his back.

Chicago's last run was Bobby Morgan's first homer of the year off Hearn with one out in the seventh.

LONDON, June 18 (AP)—Officials of the All-England Tennis Club today seeded Australia's Lew Hoad No. 1 in the men's singles for the Wimbledon Tennis Championships, June 24-July 6, and established him firmly as the favorite to become the first two-time winner since Don Budge in 1937-38.

In equal agreement with popular opinion, they put Althea Gibson, tall New York Negro girl, at the head of the women's singles seedings.

Ashley Cooper of Australia was seeded second behind Hoad and Hamilton Richardson, American Rhodes Scholar from Baton Rouge, La., and Westfield, N.J., was listed third. Following them were Sven Davidson, Sweden, No. 4; Nale Fraser, Austrlia, No. 5; Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, 1953 Wimbledon champion, No. 6; Herbie Flam, Beverly Hills, Calif., No. 7, and Mervyn Rose, Australia, No. 8.

Women's

Women's seedings were Miss Gibson; Louise Brough, four-time Wimbledon champion from Beverly Hills, Calif., No. 2; Shirley Bloomer, Britain, No. 3; Mrs. Dorothy Head Knode, Forest Hills N.Y., No. 4; Darlene Hard, Montebello, Calif., No. 5; Thelma Long, Australia, No. 6; Angela Mortimer, Britain, No. 7, and Vera Puzejova, Czechoslovakia, No. 8.

As expected, Hoad and Fraser, the team that will represent Australia in the Davis Cup this year, was seeded first in doubles ahead of Richardson and Seixas and another Aussie team, Cooper and Mal Anderson.

Miss Gibson and Miss Hard were seeded first in women's doubles and Miss Brough and Seixas first in mixed doubles.

U. S., Russia Track Clash Off

NEW YORK, June 18 (AP)—The Amateur Athletic Union today dropped plans for a proposed series of track meets between the United States and Russia.

AAU chief Dan Ferris said the reason the meets would not be held was twofold:

1. The Russians refused to go along with the U.S. proposal that each country defray in full the expenses of the visiting team.

2. The refusal of the Russians to enter the United States under immigration laws prevailing at the time of entry.

The first of the home-and-home series was to take place in Moscow July 12-14 with the United States sending a 70-man team.

Marilyn Rose to prominence in 1954 when at the age of 16 she swam from Youngstown, N.Y., to Toronto's waterfront, a distance of 32 miles, in 20 hours and 53 minutes. Set To Tell What's Wrong With Baseball

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—C. Leo De Orsey, maverick director of the Washington Senators, said today he'll mince no words telling Congress what he thinks is wrong with baseball—even if it does nettle baseball leaders.

De Orsey, a tax attorney who was named to the Senators' board of directors last winter, has recommended that the majors combine into one league, overhaul their farm system and player reserve rule.

The House Anti-trust subcommittee, which is investigating the status of professional team sports in general, has asked De Orsey to express his opinions on Thursday.

Before he gets there, the subcommittee will hear from Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick and Presidents Warren C. Giles of the National League and Will Harridge of the American League. Frick, who has taken a dim view of De Orsey's past comments, testifies tomorrow, the others on Thursday.

Right To Disagree

"Mr. Frick has a perfect right to disagree with what I have to say," De Orsey said, "but he cannot challenge my right to say it—be I right or be I wrong."

De Orsey added "baseball management and player personnel would be much better off if agreements among them were satisfactory to both sides."

And, he told a reporter, "the most important side is the minor league player—he is not safeguarded at all."

In this connection De Orsey mentioned the major league pension plan, which doesn't cover minor leaguers. He also spoke of he possibility that controls exercised through the reserve clause and farm could bury a player in the poorer-paying minors.

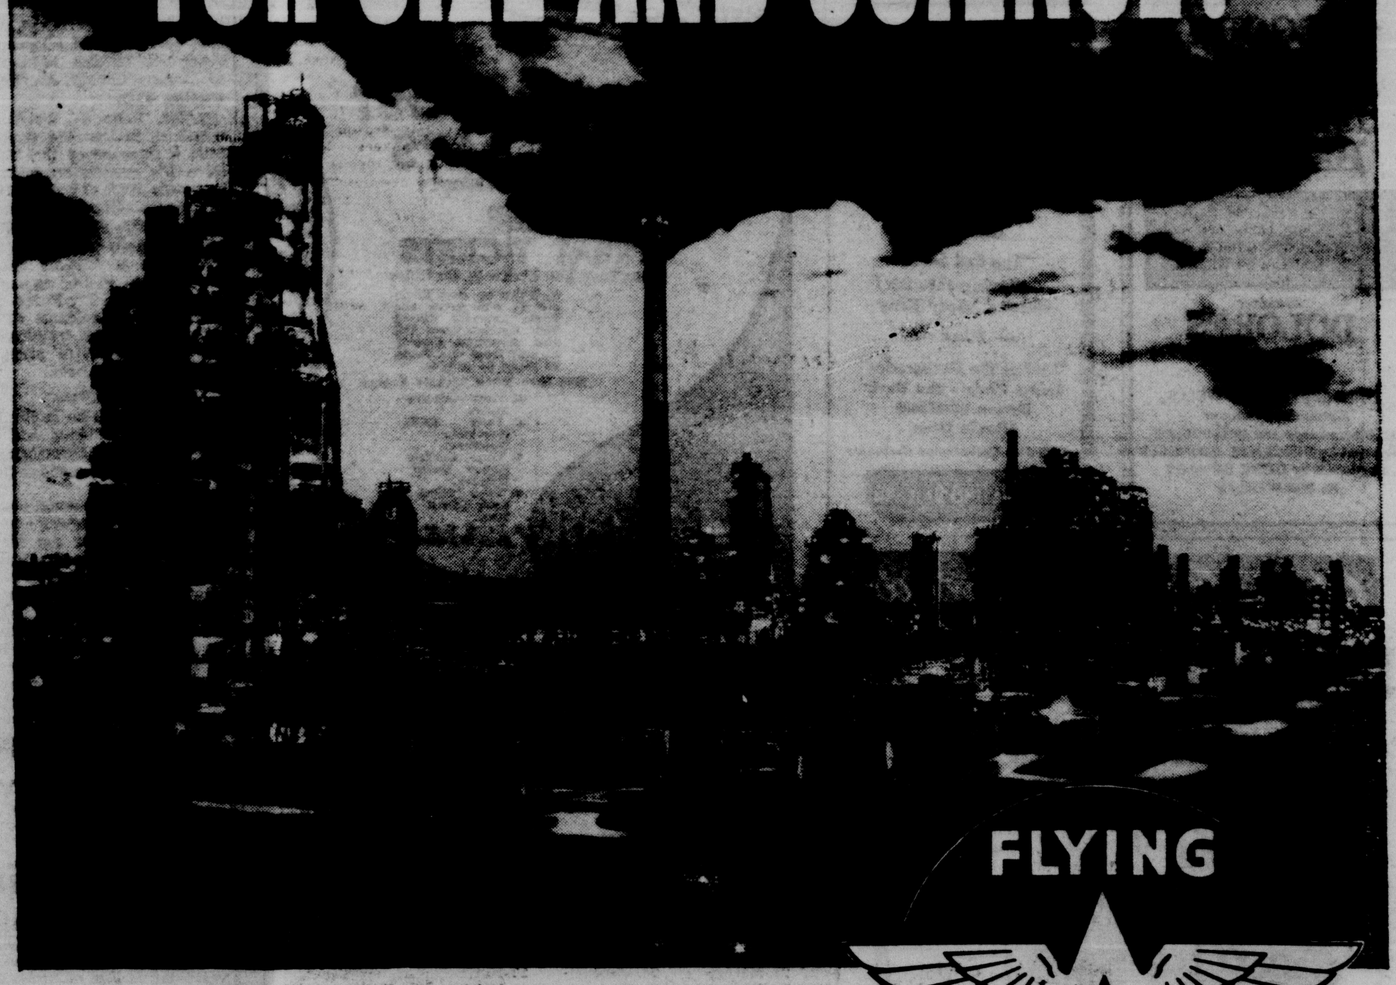

The reserve clause links a player to the club that signs him first. While reserved, a player can't bargain for himself with another club.

Critics say the practice smacks of medieval bondage. Defenders argue it's vital to prevent reckless bidding for talented players, with the richest clubs loading up and destroying competition on the field.

TIDEWATER'S NEW REFINERY SURPASSES ALL OTHERS... FOR SIZE AND SCIENCE!

The Best Refinery makes the Best Gasoline!

The world's most advanced refinery. The largest ever built from the ground up. Only Tidewater's new $200 million dollar Delaware Refinery can make its entire gasoline output 100 OCTANE PLUS! Here, exclusively in America, gasoline impurities are removed in the refinery—not in your car—by the world's largest extraction plant and hydrodesulphurizers. Here, too, vast "electronic brains" control the world's largest crude unit, fluid coker, catalytic cracker and reformer, and other record units. Only "Flying A" can give your car the world's purest, most uniformly powerful gasoline. Despite high sounding advertising claims of competition, remember: A gasoline can only be as good as the refinery that makes it.

END OF AN ERA — This covered foot bridge linking Portland, and Columbia, came out second best in a battle against raging Delaware River flood waters on August 19, 1955. Bridge Players To Take Part In Tournament

MOUNT POCONO—The addicts of the cords will swarm to Skyline Inn today for a five-day session.

Yes, ma'm and sir, break out the decks, for the bridge players will take over the famed resort for the Eighth Annual Pocono Summer Bridge Tournament.

Today at 8 p.m., the Delaware Valley Pairs, with Rheiner Hutchins and Henry Whitton defending, rule the roost, while tomorrow at 2 p.m. sees Jacqueline Fetsko and H. Alan Smith defending their Pocono Pairs. Mrs. Herbert Marcus take on all comers that night in the individual playoffs.

Friday

Friday at 2 p.m. sees the men and women separate into different rooms as the Women's Pairs and the Men's Pairs championships are fought over the card table; but they gather together that night for the Mixed Pairs at 8 p.m.

Saturday culminates the real turnament as the Open pairs and the Special Pairs are run in the afternoon and evening respectively. The team-of-four is decided on Sunday.
